

A VISITANT.

And in the hills of God, I wonder now if he'll be seen again...

A CONTRADICTION LIFE.

By Elvira Floyd Froemont.

Something less than 25 years ago the people of Montreal became interested in the eccentric character of a certain Charles McKiernan.

He selected a wide double house of cemented brick, that was located on Common street facing the river. The building was two stories in height...

As transpired, there was more truth than poetry in this blatant eulogy. He was sincerely mourned by the suffering poor, many a pathetic story being told of how he helped them and forgot to exact gratitude.

The man would hasten to oblige in a few moments he would find himself in the embrace of a big bear. His screams would bring "Joe" to his rescue.

The innkeeper had a keen sense of humor. He constantly composed and wrote doggerel verse that set his guests in a roar. He wrote epigrams for his family and friends.

A WONDERFUL CLOCK.

Westminster Timekeeper Varies Only a Second Per Week.

The great Westminster clock is said by experts to be the best tower clock in existence, says the Philadelphia Ledger.

The hands are 11 feet in length and the minute hand is counterbalanced so as to make its total length 14 feet. More trouble is likely to arise from the length of the hands than from any other part of the apparatus.

The Westminster clock reports itself twice a day, by an electrical appliance, to the Greenwich observatory. Its rate is recorded and the results are published in the annual report of the astronomer royal.

A certain speculator had need of a large sum of money for his operations, and found himself with a very small balance in the bank. He consulted a friend as to how he could get over the emergency.

Without the curse of rum hanging to it, the good work of feeding the poor still goes on; and better than all is the work of saving souls and implanting goodness that is practiced in this resting spot of a curious and not wholly wicked life.

A tiger with a glass eye is at present in the menagerie at Stuttgart, and looks as fierce with his glass eye as with the real one. A serious affection of the muscles caused the beast to lose the sight of one eye.

Shoreditch has just inaugurated an electric lighting system of a novel kind. The steam for the engine to drive the dynamo is being generated by the burning of specially-constructed furnaces of the dust and refuse of the parish.
