The British steamship Grangewood ran out of coal when 300 miles from Halitax, and in order to reach her port used her cargo of beet sugar for fuel. The sugar was worth $60 a ton.

In Iceland men and women are in every respect political equals. The nation, which numbers about 70,000 people, is governed by representatives elected by men and women together. The curious fact that corn, potatoes and other plants thrive better when placed in rows running north and south has now been proved. Planted thus,

THE INDIAN GAME OF GOLF. Twenty Redmen Will Play Their Exciting Game at the Paris

Fair Next Year.

Arrangements have just been completed with a band of 40 Creek Indians, says a Wichita (Kan.) correspondant of the Chicago Inter Ocean, to go to Paris in 1900 and give the visiters there an exhibition of the toli game, which is the most exciting and rude game among the Indian tribes. The Indians are now engaged in practice on their reservation, near Eufau-'a, and reports from there say that a number have been fatally wounded while going through the game. Only about 20 Indians are required to play the game, but the redskins are going to take along enough extra players to complete the series of 50 games for which they have been engaged. The game is similar to golf, excepting that it is much ruder. The Indians are diyided on sides, and the scramble commences when the leader throws a wooden ball into the air and the players start after it with their sticks, on the end of which there is a little basket, They are supposed to eatch this ball with their sticks before it reaches the ground and carry it about 300 yards to the goal; then with one mighty throw 'and it over a high pole, and the game is \ won. This trick is not easily accom- now to visit the upper Tigris, Mossul p ished, when the fact is brought to and Nineveh, and to continue their inmind that 20 other Indians, with heavy clubs, are pursuing him and attempt ing to beat him to earth, which is oftener done than he escapes. The swiftest runners are chosen for this game, so that when they once get the ball it can be carried to the goal and the game

SUICIDE OF A ROGUE CAMEL

Failing to Kill a Cruel Master, the Victors Beast Takes Its Own Life.

A valuable camel working in an oil mill in Africa, was beaten by its driver. Seeing that the camel had treasured up the injury and was only waiting a favorable chance for revenge, the driver kept a strict watch upon the animal. Time pa-sed away; the camel, knowing that it was watched, was quiet and obedient, and the driver began to think that the beating was forgotten, when one night after several months had gone by, the man was sleeping on a raised platform in the mill, whilst, as is customary, the camel was stabled in a corner, says an exchange.

Happening to awake, the driver saw by the bright moonlight that, when all was quiet, the animal looked cautiously around, rose softly, and, stealing toward a spot where a bundle of clothes and a burnous, thrown carelessly on the ground, resembled a sleeping figure, cast itself with violence upon them, rolling with all its weight, and tearing them viciously with its teeth. Satisfied that its revenge was complete, the camel was returning to its corner when the driver sat up and spoke. At the sound of his voice, and realizingthe mistake it had made, the animal was so mortified at the failure and discovery of its scheme that it dashed its head against the wall and died on the spot.

Bernini's Centenary.

Rome has just celebrated the third centenary of Giaulorenzo Bernini, who was sculptor, painter, architect and dramatist. Bernini, from early childhood until he died, at the age of SS, found constant employment in art. He lived long enough to have seen not less than ten popes. It was Urban VIII. who was Bernini's great patron.

agreed to visit Berlin and deliver an iddress before the Press association of that city, but later on declined to keep his engagement on account of the expulsion of Danes from North Schleswig. In an explanatory letter he says that the Germans do not seem to realize the bitter feeling which the expulsions have excited through Scandinavia generally. He then writes: "It is precisely because our government preserves silence that the wounds caused to the national feeling by these measures burn the deeper into the hearts of the people. The theory that an agitation is being conducted from Copenhagen to restore, by force if necessary, North Schleswig to Denmark is too absurd to not a single man thinks of such a thing. But to-day one cannot denationalize a | fur was prime. people by force." The Danish inhabitants of Schleswig, he goes on to say, donot intend to give up their mothertongue even should their children receive no instructions in it, nor do they intend to renounce their right of freely conversing in Danish with their brothers and sisters across the frontier. Germans must also learn to understand of Europe in view of the hard measures Bohemia and elsewhere, so too the Danes, under similar conditions, plead for the right of preserving the Danish language, even though those who speak it may be living in a strange land.

HISTORIC WINE CELLAR. Important Discoveries Made by Two German Explorers in Asia Minor.

The explorer, Dr. Belck, who was attacked in September last while prosecuting his studies in Asia Minor, has made some interesting discoveries near Lake Wan. He and Dr. Lehmann are searching for Chaldean inscriptions, and the cost of their expedition is being defrayed from a fund to which the principal contributors are the kaiser and the Virchow institute, says a Berlin Dispatch in London Mail. According to letters dated Tiflis, November 26, the two explorers, in excavating among the ruins of a palace of the old Chaldean king Argastes II., came across this monarch's wine cellar. It was filled with colossal earthenware vessels, a few of which have been secured for the Berlin museum.

Of far greater importance, however, is their discovery of inscriptions on the drains of the palace, which furnish a complete chronology to the time of the Assyrian king Tiglat Phalasar (about the eighth century before Christ). The Armenian patriarchs have been very gracious to the two German explorers, and have even allowed them the unwonted privilege of taking away an extremely interesting inscription from the wall of an old monastery. Dr. Belck and his colleague intend home of the earliest civilization, the district between Mount Ararat and the upper reaches of the Tigris and Eu-

A FEAT IN GLASS BLOWING.

An Unpretentions Russian Peasant Shows Experts a Trick in Their Own Trade.

Emperor Nicholas wished to illumi nate the Alexander column in a grand style. The style of the round lamps to be used for the purpose was indicated. and the glasses ordered at the manufactory, where the workmen exerted themselves in vain, and almost blew the breath out of their bodies in the endeavor to obtain the desired size. The commission must be executed-that was self-evident; but how? A great premium was offered to the one who could solve the problem. Again the human bellows toiled and puffed. Their object seemed unattainable; when at last a long-bearded Russian stepped forward and declared that he could do it-he had strong lungs, he would only rinse his mouth first with a little water to refresh them. He applied his mouth to the pipe. and puffed to such purpose that the vitreous ball swelled and puffed nearly to the required dimensions, up to them, beyond them.

"Hold! Hold!" cried the lookers on "You are doing too much; and how did you do it all?"

"The matter is simple enough," answered the long beard, "but first, where is my premium?"

And when he had clutched the promised bounty, he explained. He had retained some of the water in his mouth, which had passed thence into the glowing ball, and then becoming steam had rendered him this good service.

Pathos in Polani.

What is sadder, says the New York Times, than the way in which the Poles of Polish Russia were forced to greet the coming centenary of their great poet, Mickiewicz. They were permitted to give money for the erection of a monument which was to keep alive the memory of Mickiewicz, but were not allowed to print or mention in any way his name. The day the monument was unveiled speeches were prohibited, and no applause was heard. What the crowd did when the monument was seen was to keep a dead silence, but every head was uncovered.

OLD TRAPPERS DYING OUT.

There is No Longer Any Money is Tramping the Eastern Woods.

Trapping as a business has about Prof. George Brandes some time ago ended in the eastern states. A few boys and improvident men still set traps along the various woods streams of Pennsylvania, New York and Maine, but the old-time trapper is going. The time was when men had lines of traps up streams, over ridges and through swamps for scores of miles, through densest forest, a steel trap or dead fall, large enough to hold a mink or marten. every quarter of a mile or so, and a double-spring trap at "likely" places along the line, large enough to hold a fox, wolf, fisher or other bait thief. A couple or three bear traps were commonly on the line. Every 10 or 12 miles was a little shanty, with its pile of dry bickory, frying pan, a bag of salt and require serious notice. In all Denmark stretchers for the skins, all of which had been prepared in the fall before the

The longest lines took a week or 10 days to cover. Progress was slow. Snow had to be cleared away from the traps after a storm, the victims had to be skinned, the traps re-set and rebaited. Deer were shot to supply the bait. All alone, the trapper, with an ax or rifle and a light pack containing food, followed his line by the blaze that just as they invoke the sympathy | marks he had cut on the trees. It was a life of toil and hardship. Sometimes enforced against the German tongue in the men were lost, and in the spring. or years after, their bones would be found with the rusted ax or rifle. The remuneration was not great, but large enough to be tempting in the days when a prime mink brought $10 to $12 each.

Au Object Lesson in the Economics of Matrimony in the City of Chicago.

They called him "Perk" for short, because they were too busy to get the "ins" to make the full name, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Perk never did much in the way of supporting himself, but he let his married sister do the providing. She had done this for so many years that he began to think that it was her duty. In the summer time he played a cornet at the "chutes" and flirted with the girls. Last summer he met a young girl at the "chutes" and fell in love with her. When winter came his occupation was gone, and he was too lazy to get another. He spent his time calling on his summer girl, who was obliged to work in a restaurant at seven dollars per week to support herself. One Sunday recently Perk thought that life would be unbearable without his charmer, and, borrowing 20 cents from his sister, which was all the mone she had, he came in from Rowmanville, found his inamorata, and, to do the thing up in romantic style, they eloped to Wisconsin. It took the girl's week's wages to pay the railroad fare | Chemine de for aronine. across the state line. They might bave had the knot field here at less expense, but that would have taken out all the romance. Nobody would have prevented their marryinig, as no one cared. After Perk had been married. he wrote to his sister, saying: "Will be home Monday night. I hope everything will be all right."

It was all wrong. For when Perk and his bride returned to Powmanville the door was shut and they were told that there was no room for them there.

IN PARLOUS TIMES.

Mansions of the Olden Days Had to Be Built with Many Secret Passages.

The onward march of building progress has unearthed many secrets connected with the old-time mansions of this city. The latest to yield up its secrets to the world is the old Hamilton mansion, which has buffeted the storms of a century and a half in Woodlands cemetery, says the Philadelphia Record. In tearing down some of the side walls the destroyers discovered several ingeniously concealed stairways. These led from secret panels on the ground floor to rooms in the second and third stories. Another secret stairway leads to blind rooms, which also has a secret existence. Why these rooms were built there is much doubt. It is pretty well settled that William Hamilton, who bought the grounds and mansion in 1747, had these secret passages arranged so that he could escape if it became necessary. He was at one time resting under the charge of high treason, and the times about the beginning of the revolution were anything but quiet. The Hamilton mansion is by no means the only house with these odd retreats. The old Penn house in the Zoological gardens is full of secret passages and stairways. There are passageways in that old house that no one living to-day can tell the one time utility of. If people passed through them it must have been done by lying down and crawling along, for it would admit of progress in no other way.

Experiment with Sulphur. A Portland (Me.) man who put sulphur in his shoes to prevent grippe found that he exhales sulphurous fumes, and that the silver change in his pocket turned quite black. He says that the silver watch of the mate of a vessel which brought a cargo of sulphur to Portland last week was thoroughly blackened from the same cause.
