Pitcher Doesn't Seem to Even Understand Now to Hold a Bat

St. Louis, April 27.-If any National league manager except Miller Huggins were asked to name the most awkward batter in the Tener circuit, Lee Meadows, the Cards' goggle-eyed slab artist would very probably draw the selection. Few pitchers are good hitters, but most of the slabmen, no matter how poor Champion Freddie Welsh for their their swatting ability may be, know how to swing the bat.

Meadows, however, doesn't seem to even understand how to grasp a bat, let alone swing it.
