GERMAN MILITARY SANCTIFIES WAR

Washington, June 4.—The vast difference between universal service for the purpose of national protection and universal service which builds up a system of military despotism is set forth in a communication to the National Geographic society by Granville Fortescue, the military expert. A portion of Mr. Fortescue's communication is issued by the society as the following bulletin:

"Contrasting the French with the German army, we discover, though both are grounded on conscription, they are radically different in their inspiration of service. The French and German armies are completely separate in soul. History gives us the analogue of variance between the French and German military systems in the story of Greece and Rome. The Roman armies were organized for conquest, with the aim of spreading Roman 'kultur' to the southernmost boundaries of Carthage and to the northernmost villages of Gaul. The Roman eagle, like his Prussian descendant, sank his beak into the breast of the world. Roman power, like Prussian power, sprang from the will of the emperor.

"In Greece, in the age of Pericles, the demos was the fountain of power, and the army was the guardian of the freedom of the people. The ideal which inspired the Athenians, honor gained in serving the country, is today the ideal inspiring the soldiers of France.

"In analyzing the spirit of the French soldier, bear in mind this vital fact: fighting is an emotional act; and it is admitted that an emotion springing from an ideal is necessarily finer than one founded on a person. The German goes to battle with the kaiser's sparkling figure in the back of his mind, while the Frenchman fights for all that is connoted in the one word—France.

"Frankly, the German honors, reverences, sanctifies war; the Frenchman hates, despises, abhors war. I have seen soldiers of both nations in battle. I have studied them and talked with them after battle. I have watched for some unconscious expression that would give the clue to the real feelings of the French and German soldier, and when some phrase of the lips or flare of the eye marked the true state of the inward soul I have noted it.

"In countless ways the German shows it is the kaiser he fights for; that dominant, disdainful figure symbolizes the Teutonic system, inspiring the German race to the ultimate sacrifice in the effort to spread that system over the face of the earth.

"Never has the French soldier given any indication other than that he fights for his country, his cities, his farms, his home. Never does he give way to the lust of battle for battle's sake. He sees in this war an evil, a scourge laying waste his beloved country, and he conceives it to be his duty to his forefathers, to himself and to his children to rid the earth of this plague. The cultivated Frenchman will take pains to explain to you how illogical, how unintelligent, uncivilized is war; yet you will see this same cultivated Frenchman wearing the uniform of his motherland racing like a fighting fury to the guzzles of the machine guns.

"Will not the man who recognizes the brutal side of war, still does not hesitate to pay its penalty, merit more of the title of hero than he who fights to gratify ambition?"

NO ENCOURAGEMENT TO SKULKERS IN MEXICO

Laredo, Tex., June 5. — Young Americans who have been crossing into Mexico ostensibly to mine or prospect for oil, but actually, in the belief of government officials, to evade the selective draft, are meeting with little encouragement, according to information received from the interior of Mexico. Neither American nor European employers are giving the newcomers consideration except in extremity. Preference in employment is being given to refugees of honest convictions temporarily interned abroad, reports received here say.

ST. LOUIS IS HOST FOR ADVERTISING MEN

By International News Service.

St. Louis, Mo., June 5.—Hundreds of leading advertising men from all parts of the country are here for the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, which opened yesterday.

Despite the war, the attendance will be very good. Enthusiasm runs high and patriotic fervor will mark the sessions, many of which will be held in the Municipal Courts building and the city hall. The days will be devoted to business, is is announced, and the evenings to recreation.

FIRST CALL TO THE COLORS SEPT. 5?

Washington, June 5.—The first actual draft of America's citizen soldiery will probably be September 5.

According to present indications, it will take that long to prepare supplies, proper housing and other equipment for the first ½ million men between the ages of 21 and 30, who will be selected to serve their country.

There has been much complaint over so-called "delay" by the government in getting under headway. But one official said today. "It is only American ingenuity that enables us to get ready by September 5."

Every step is being taken with deliberation and care, in order to reduce to the minimum the possibility of mistakes. It is not the government's purpose to get thousands of young men into camp without every means at hand to properly care for them, equip them and prepare them for service.

It is confidently stated that as soon as the groundwork of the structure is laid, American speed and thoroughness will begin to show itself in the rapid consummation of the work it faces. Meantime, it is claimed that a tremendous amount more than shows on the surface now, is being accomplished.

LEWIS WAS READY FOR WAR

When Detectives Marullo and Gregson entered the room of Madison Lewis, negro, 220 South Robertson street, to arrest him for assault with a dangerous weapon yesterday, they found him lying on the bed fully dressed with a revolver and several shells nearby. The detectives covered him with the guns and had little difficulty in taking him to jail. They arrested him on a capias from the criminal court.

In addition to the regular bill at the Diamond Theatre today, Colonial Dames will have a special benefit film showing the work of the American ambulance corps in Europe. The proceeds of the performances will go to the Colonial Dames as a fund to form a $50,000 hospital ship.

$50 FOR RELIEF FUND

Pupils of Miss Louise McGehee's school have donated almost $50 to the hot weather relief fund of the Child's Welfare association. This money will be used to put extra nurses in the field during the summer and purchase cereals for the babies of the city.

WILDGRUBE'S BODY RECOVERED

The body of Gustav Wildgrube, the German who jumped into the river at Short street last week, was found off Diana street, Algiers, yesterday morning. A. H. Jordan, his brother-in-law, with whom he lived at 729 Sixth street, identified the corpse and took charge of it. Wildgrube is said to have committed suicide because of worry over his people in Germany.

HAWAII FIRE GODDESS PREDICTS U. S. VICTORY

By International News Service.

San Francisco, June 5.—Pele, the fire goddess of Hawaii, is enraged and natives see in that fact the defeat of the Germans, according to passengers arriving in a California port from Honolulu.

The natives' legend is that whenever Kilauea volcano erupts the fire goddess is angry and is hurling death and destruction upon the enemies of the islands. And as Hawaii is proudly American and America's enemies are the enemies of the picturesque Kanakas, they see in the present eruption more trouble for the Teuton hosts.

CHINESE BEGIN TO HUM U. S. RAGTIME

By International News Service.

Kansas City, Mo., June 5.—Musical instruments from Kansas City are on their way to equip a brass band in China.

In connection with the order, it was said that China is now turning from the weird tangle of sounds which passed for music in that country for centuries. With their friendship for America and all things American, the Chinese have taken a liking to our music. The in Hong Kong or Pekin almost as soon as in Kansas City.

EMERY BALL HOWL AGAIN BOBS UP

By JACK VEIOCK,
International News Sports Editor.

New York, June 4.—The annual howl against the use of the emery ball by big league pitchers has been set up as usual this season by disgruntled managers.

It's getting so a baseball season would be just as much of a success as a burlesque show without broilers if the emery ball failed to come in for some glaring publicity, so we take it all as a matter of colrse.

Are the pitchers in the big show still using the deceptive emery ball despite the fact that it is supposed to be tabooed?

Speaking of some American league pitchers, Clarke Griffith of the Nationals avers that they are still tossing the elusive ball with the feathers on one side. He is positive that he has caught several pitchers in the act, and among them is Eddie Cicotte of the White Sox, old, but still getting by and pitching some very uncanny ball for Pants Rowland.

Is Eddie putting over victory after victory with the aid of nickel's worth of emery paper? We don't know, but unless umpires can get something on him it is only fair to give him the benefit of the doubt and say that he isn't.

In the National league several chirps have already been heard against the use of the deadly emery ball, not to mention the unfriendly bean ball, and the pitchers who have been winning regularly are all regarded with suspicion by rival clubs and managers.

It won't surprise the writer to hear some manager howling about Cy Falkenberg's delivery before long. Lanky Ole Cy is a veteran, and also a fox. He is a good pitcher who uses his arm and his head on a fifty-fifty basis, and just as soon as the weather quits flirting with zero Cyrus is very liable to start turning the batters back from the plate with painful regularity. Cy will be accused of using emery before the season gets by July, or we'll miss our guess.

Does Cyrus use the emery? He says not. And Dick Gossett, his catcher in the American association, backs him up. Gossett says Falky's stock in trade is a fast one with a wicked hop on it, and a rise ball which he starts from below the waist line.

In the Federal league they accused Falkenberg, Ford and all of the veterans with the use of the emery, and they threw out a good many baseballs because they found 'em roughed up on one side. But the umps never found anything that looked like emery paper on any of the pitchers, and it probably wouldn't have been much use for them to have gotten out search warrants.

The pitchers who are foxy enough to get away with the trick delivery stuff are also smart enough to cover up. And it must be remembered that there are nine ball players on a team, any one of whom might be holding the secret of how the little pill gets a currying on one side which makes it act foolish on the way to the plate.

If the pitchers are using the emery ball they will be hard to stop, and who knows but what some of them have discovered a new secret or two about the science of pitching? The startling form shown by so many old-timers this season may be pointed to as food for thought along this line.

NAVY GAINED 22 RECRUITS

Registration day was a big day in the naval recruiting station. Twenty-two men successfully passed the physical examination and were admitted to the navy by 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Of this number seven enlisted as third class firemen; one as water tender; eleven as apprentice seamen, two as seamen and one as third class painter.

MOVIE NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR MISSTEP IN THE DARK

Jefferson City, Mo., June 5.—Proprietors of motion picture shows are not subject to damage suits if some of their patrons blunder in the dark and hurt themselves, where the ordinary precautions have been taken. Rosa Peck, a Kansas City milliner, 60 years old, was a frequent patron of the Yale Amusement company at 706 Main street, Kansas City, until one night in leaving the show while films were still being exhibited she fell and dislocated her shoulder. The supreme court put an end to the litigation today by holding that the company was within its rights in keeping the room darkened to exhibit its films better.

GENERAL BRIDGES

General Bridges is one of the British war commissioners who came to this country. He has seen much active service on the western front and gained fame there.

DID NOT SEE THAT BRIDGE WAS OPEN

Burial of Miss Henrietta Walston, 128 North David street, drowned in the New Basin at the Southern Yacht club's pen bridge at midnight Monday, will be made at Gulfport, Miss., where her parents live. The body was shipped yesterday morning.

Miss Walston, with three friends, was coming in to New Orleans in an automobile. Fred Wilson, 1312 Constantinople street, driving the car, did not notice that the bridge of the yacht club pen was open until close upon it. He made a desperate effort to stop, but the machine plunged into the basin.

Occupants of the car beside Miss Walston and Wilson were Ferdinand Landry, 837 Jackson avenue, and Miss May Smith, 2005 Bandin street. Landry leaped from the car before it left land and was unhurt. The others went down with the automobile. Miss Smith and Wilson receiving injury pronounced not serious at the Charity hospital.

The three were pinned beneath the automobile in the basin and all would have been drowned but for the assistance of the crews of vessels anchored nearby. Difficulty was experienced in extracting Miss Walston from the wreckage and, when lifted ashore, she was dead.

The dead woman was a detective in the employ of a local detective agency.

BRITISH RECRUITING OFFICE OPENED

Colonel Lewis in charge of the army recruiting station has received instructions that he is empowered to recruit British subjects between the ages of 18 and 45 years. This also applies to persons who would enlist with the Canadian army. Arrangements have been made to give the recruit a preliminary physical examination and furnish him with subsistence to the nearest English recruiting station.

LEGAL STEPS MAY BE TAKEN TO PREVENT SCHOOL PURCHASE

Legal steps may be taken to prohibit the school board from using the Day bequest for the purchase of the Calliope building for the use of a normal school. The protest of the Normal School Mother's club was indorsed Monday night at a meeting of the Co-operative Presidents club and steps were taken to investigate the proposition. It is claimed that the fund was left to build a new normal school and not to purchase a building to be used as a normal school.

A committee with power to call a special meeting of the club if necessary was appointed to make an investigation into the proposed purchase.

FRIEND OF EMPEROR, SHE DIES IN OBSCURITY

By International News Service.

Atlanta, June 5.—Mrs. Leo Bloch, often the dance partner of the Emperor Maximilian in days long past, has just died here and been buried in obscurity. No relatives and but a handful of friends attended the establishment.

Mrs. Bock was eighty-five years old and had outlived her circle of acquaintances of the prime of her life. The daughter of a German officer and a noble Frenchwoman, she was born in an old Munich castle. In her youth she visited every royal court of Europe.

Her husband was a German artist, who came to the United States and died here before he could reap the reward of his talent. Mrs. Bock then lived by teaching music.

350 DENTISTS IN NEW ORLEANS

Dr. Norman B. Nesbett, of Boston, delivered a special lecture yesterday morning at the Grunewald Hotel on removable bridge work at a meeting of southern dentists presided over by the association's president. Dr. Arthur E. Smith, of Chicago, a specialist on nerve blocking work addressed the dentists during the afternoon.

Nearly 350 dentists from Texas, Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi are in attendance.
