WIFE'S JOB AS COOK KEEPS HIM FROM JAIL

the road to a man's heart is judge personally furnishing the fire, proof of the proverb.

John Jones, a negro employed at - the Latshaw home, was before the court charged with wrecking the Sudge's motor car while on an unnuthorized joy ride. Justice Shepard was called in to sit on the bench in Judge Latshaw's stead.

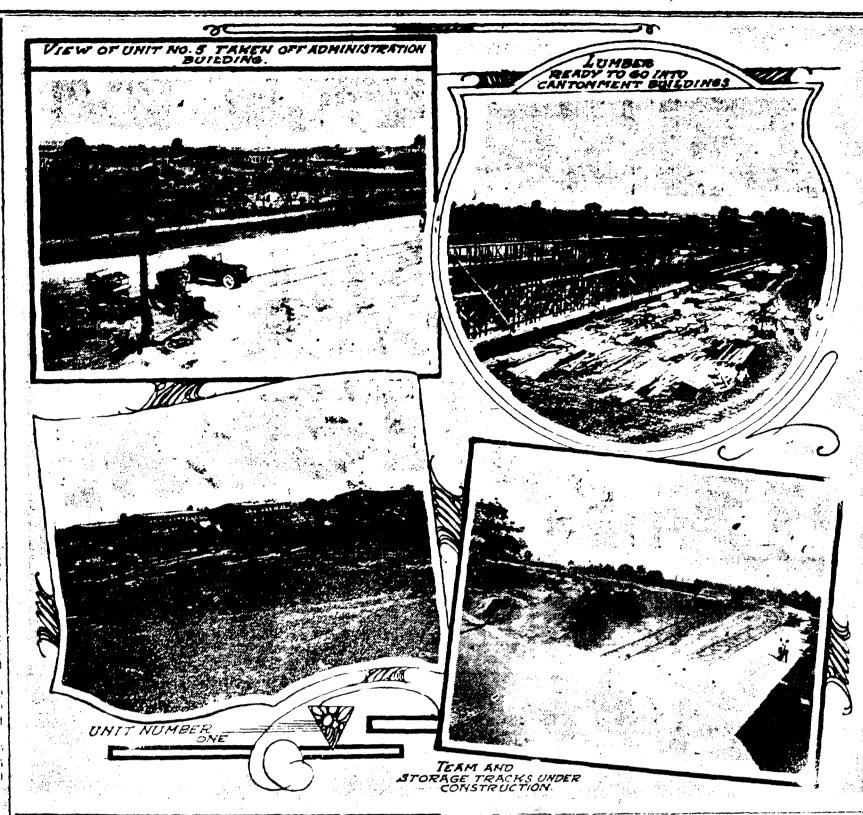

After heaving the evidence Jus-Aice Shepard whispered with Judge Tatshaw and then announced that the sentence would be six months in jail, but that in view of the exdenuating circumstances" a parole would be granted.

"What were the extenuating circonstances?" Jastice Shepard was asked later.

"Jones' wife's hiscuits," he said. "You see, she is the cook for the Latshaws, and the judge was afraid she'd go on strike if we sent her husband to jail.
