"LOUISIANA COLONIALS"

A address delivered by Colonel H. J. de la Vergne November 11, 1917, at the National Farm and Live Stock Show - Patriotic Day - at the Fair Grounds:

Ladies and gentlemen, When France, that country of valor and greatness - that land of chivalry and love - that land of knights sans peur et sans reproche, when valor and fertility are the principal traits of all - that country that every man should love, when France, I again say, founded her colonies beyond the seas, she not only increased her riches and her power, but at the same time, extended the domain of her glory.

Among the families whom she sent to establish her colonies, some were the descendants of her kings and others of those valiant Crusaders who had gone to Palestine to shed their blood for the love of their God and the glory of Monarchy.

These settlers were to continue the traditions of their ancestors, by rendering all kinds of services for the honor of their mother land, The History of Louisiana loves to mention and revere their illustrious names.

The descendants of those pioneers were characterized for their pride of blood, by their grace of manner and their education.

They were qualified, both men and women, by right of birth and ancestry, to fill the highest positions, socially and intellectually.

Their ideals were always very high and lofty. They believed the rights of men, for life, freedom and happiness; they overcame any attempt to trample upon these natural gifts of God.

They were of the opinion that the government must rest upon the consent of the people governed. They believed in law and order, and maintained that these were the safeguard of liberty. They held that the burden should not be forced on anyone but that they should be equalized according to the conditions of fortune of the people governed. They also maintained that the welfare of the commonwealth must dominate the egoistic interest of persons and classes; that liberty is the divine gift and that unity and friendship among men must be a human necessity.

They believed that the free new world would offer an asylum to the oppressed and that fair dealings should exist among all the nations of the universe; they believed in the existence and perpetuity of traditions and that the future generations would be willing to generate and do honor to the memory of their ancestors.

Mindful of that duty, a number of ladies and gentlemen, the descendants of these pioneers have met and formed an organization under the name of the "Louisiana Colonials."

The objects of this society are: To perpetuate the memories of those who colonized the ancient province of Louisiana; to collect traditions of colonial times; to help in preserving historical buildings, documents, relics and works of art of that epoch; also, to preserve the records of the ancestry of its members, as they may be of great value to the members themselves and to their descendants.

I have the distinction to be the president of the Louisiana Colonials, and as such, I take pleasure on this occasion to invite all those who can trace their ancestry to beyond the year 1803, in the province or the territory of Louisiana, to join this society, and by that means do honor to themselves and justice to their ancestry.

In line with the movement looking to the conservation of food supplies, Dr. Oscar Dowling, president of the State Board of Health, has written to officials of all the railroads operating in this state, asking for statistics concerning the killing of cattle by railroad trains.

Charged with a violation of the Harrison anti-narcotic law relative to having poisonous drugs in their possession, Daisy Davis, 1508 St. Louis street and Morris Rosenberg, an unlicensed pedler, were arrested Saturday by Deputy Revenue Collector Douglas and Detective Cassard. Both were booked in the First Precinct Station. The officers allege they found in the woman's room a quantity of morphine, several syringes and other articles for the use of the drug. Several cubes of morphine, they say, also were found in Rosenberg's possession.

Representatives of the commercial organizations of Louisiana and others interested in having the law taxing open accounts and credits repealed will assemble in the rooms of the Association of Commerce Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock. Saturday night fire, caused by explosion of a gas stove, slightly damaged the home of Mrs. Bertha Morgan, 1520 Felicite street, and the adjoining residence, 1522 Felicite street, occupied by Mrs. M. S. Green. August Blum owns the houses and insurance covers the loss.

The campaign begun by the credit men's associations in New Orleans, Shreveport, Alexandria, Monroe and Lake Charles to have the Legislature repeal the law taxing open accounts and credits is rapidly becoming a state-wide movement. Organizations in Baton Rouge, Alexandria and New Iberia have joined in the fight.

draft for the new national army, but general interest has been taken in the case of Brother Florian, of the order of the Sacred Heart, who was certified by an exemption board in Indianapolis and who appealed on the ground that, although not a priest in order, as a member of a teaching confraternity he was entitled to exemption. His plea was upheld and it is interpreted to mean that the members of the teaching orders in the parochial schools and universities in New Orleans will not be required to enter the army.

One million pennies and paper tickets began arriving at the United States sub-treasury at noon Monday. The shipments came from the East to relieve the shortage here. The papers came from Philadelphia and the "jitneys" from Cincinnati.

Two affidavits charging sale of ducks out of season were made in the first city criminal court Monday morning by Conservation Inspector E. R. Senae and Harry Mason, Avenida E. F. Niedel, manager of Nelson grocery No. 16, 7016 McCarthy street, and John De France, proprietor of the Delahouisse restaurant, St. Charles avenue and Ecole street. Affidavits say Niedel had 20 ducks up for sale in front of the grocery and that De France was serving ducks to customers.

Thirty minutes after he started working Monday morning, Phil Hammer, 20, fell from the roof of the Joseph Iron Works at Algiers and suffered a fracture at the base of the skull. He is in Charity Hospital, where his condition is pronounced serious.

Only three violations of the Sunday closing law were charged by police Sunday. Angelo Tranchina, proprietor of a saloon at 507 St. Charles street, was charged with violating the Sunday law relative to having the door of his barroom open. T. Ourse, 1201 Poydras street, was accused of permitting several negroes to drink at the bar. Police say affidavits will be made against Joseph and Frank Pipitone, operating a saloon at North Scott and St. Louis streets. Police say they saw six men leave the saloon by a rear door.

John H. Baker, the soldier who took poison Friday in a rooming house in Canal street, and died several hours later in the Charity Hospital, was positively identified late Saturday night by Captain Hall and Lieutenant Watson of the One Hundred and Thirty-ninth Field Artillery, as a corporal of Battery C, of that regiment. The One Hundred and Thirty-ninth Artillery is now stationed at Hattiesburg, Miss., and Baker left Hattiesburg November 2, without having been granted a furlough and the officers came to New Orleans when they learned that a soldier named Baker had committed suicide here.

The Klutz Cracker Factory Company, whose plant and the three-story brick building of H. T. Cottam which it occupied at Tchoupitoulas street, were destroyed by fire Oct. 28, with a total loss of about $100,000, will rebuild, according to an announcement here Saturday by J. J. Thomas, president, 906 Broadway street. Mr. Thomas said construction would begin as soon as the fire losses were settled and the ruins cleared away.
