Surseparilla—The virtue of the shrub as a purifier and stempthener of the human system, especially of the blood, have been long since established, and are now universally known; the best needing a suthority is in their favor, and the testimony of the profession to this point is almost if not quite unanimous. The only question is as to the form in which they can be breakled to general use. The Callege of Pharmacy and Physicians prove this, it has then stained the celebrated highly and richly concentrated compound arrap of Sarasparilla, prepared by a new chemical steam process by an eminent chemist, who has devoted guch attention to the subject.
